Gestión de Compras provides various mechanical components and hardware. Gas springs, anchors, nuts, springs, screws and hinges with some of the available components.

PRODUCTS:

The mechanical components and hardware tools and parts are in high demand in various sectors. They are present in the household furniture and workplaces. In kitchens, living rooms, offices and rest areas as part of drawers, cabinets, chairs and office desks, sofas and armchairs. Certain gym equipment such as weight machines also use these components. Generally, doors, windows and vehicle parts (doors, hoods, trunks, and regulators) will also be in these parts.

Some of the most used mechanical and hardware components are the screws, hinges, dampers and gas springs.

The gas springs are made by casting and forging processes, and made from aluminum alloy with copper, magnesium and silicon. They are used in furniture, beds, sofas and similar furnishings, as well as in other areas.

The shock absorbers or dampers, have the primary function of absorbing the energy required to reduce the rocking which causes a continuous movement, or even to slow the energy released at once.

We also provide hardware and accessories for doors and windows. The most important element in this sector are hinges because they make possible the rotation for parts of a rotating element. For example, the hinges are responsible for opening and closing a window or door. They are made from materials such as plastic, brass or steel. Consist of two parts: one part is fixed to the element, and the other which is fixed on the other hand and rotates on its axis.

Finally, fasteners whose function is fix, retain, couple, align, mount or assemble two or more workpieces. Fasteners family include screws, bolts, nuts, washers, nails, rivets, inserts, threaded rods, pins, retaining rings and anchors. Most important are bolts and screws that are cylindrical bars of metal with a helical groove, called thread, and a head on one end that allow it to be turned.
